Synopsis: Painful is this topic, as such everyone avoids discussing it. Imagine how hard it would be to talk about it with a child, when the person suffering from cancer is his own mother! Contrary to the reader's expectations, the approach in this book is easy and heart-touching. The story reaches out to children and reveals through their innocence and their parents' endless patience the possibility to deal with this reality smoothly and simply.

The Author: Nuha was born in Sydney in 1975. She grew up in Australia and got her Bachelor of Teaching (Secondary) and Bachelor of Arts for HSIE (history), Anthropology and Computing. She moved to Beirut in 2002 to be next to her love. They got married and had 2 children. She joined International College in 2006 where she taught social studies. She aimed to published this book to help the kids going through the overwhelming experience of cancer in their houses. She will always be remembered by her generosity, friendship and the care of others.
